

Dear Parents,

Our advisory program, operating in concert with the individual guidance counselors, ensures that every student has a weekly meeting with a faculty member whose focus is to look after the student's well-being, advocate for his/her needs and see to that student's happiness at The Frisch School.

Each student is assigned an advisor and a guidance counselor but as a parent, you might still wonder whom to contact in any particular situation.

The advisor, who meets with the student on a weekly basis, is the primary point of contact for parents who have questions about the everyday academic progress, and the social and religious wellbeing of their child. This includes, but is not limited to issues of goal setting, time management, grades, placement changes, extra-curricular activities, relationships with peers and faculty, and religious questions and struggles. Parents should feel free to contact the advisors with any questions or concerns in these areas.

The guidance counselor is the point person for any substantial issues affecting a student's life such as serious sickness, family issues, and repeated academic failure. Parents should communicate these broader and/or ongoing concerns to the guidance counselor who can then work with the family, student and teacher to ensure proper accommodations are made.

We look forward to partnering with you in pursuing the best for your child and helping you help us in securing their success.

Best,
